unrest at home and abroad marks year

the past year has been marked by political, social, and economic tensions. predominant among the year's events was the continuation of the war in vietnam. mounting opposition to u.s. participation in this conflict came from all corners of the world. internationally, criticism aimed at our involvement has come from both pro and anti-western nations. on the homefront, the war has created dissention among people from all walks of life.

southeast asia, however, is not the only area of the world beset by armed confrontation. in mid-summer the long-simmering arab-israeli situation erupted into war. the cultural revolution in communist china has brought an even more uncertain outlook to future peace.

situations at home have paralleled the tense world events. racial discord throughout the country has threatened not only our national security but also our position of leadership in the world. violence, such as took place in many american cities this year, threatens to continue if no permanent solution is gained.

other events have aggravated the already strained world predicament. the british pound was devaluated, with a resulting danger to the dollar. individual disasters have also complicated our attempts to solve more general problems. the deaths of three american astronauts and a russian cosmonaut temporarily retarded the space program in both countries.

recent increased offensives of the vietcong and actions of the north korean government in the pueblo incident make lasting peace seem an almost impossible achievement.

seniors experience tempo of the times despite these overshadowing setbacks, the people of the world have continued to take great steps forward in science, public affairs and education. the glassboro summit meeting showed that all people are seeking peace and are taking sensible first steps in this direction.

advances in science have been astounding. putting a man on the moon seems just around the corner. even the creation of life, in very basic stages, has appeared in the laboratory. the most amazing event in the field of medicine occurred this year, too. louis washkansky survived eighteen days after another person's heart had been transplanted into his body. although the operation was not a complete success, this major achievement bolsters medical confidence that a man will soon be able to live a full life with transplanted organs.

variety and change characterize times trends and fads flashed in and out of the american and world scenes throughout the year. mini-skirts, although frowned upon by many designers, were still everywhere; however, ladies also had the choice of midi- or maxi- lengths.

psychedelic groups flourished in all sections of the country. even staid philadelphia saw the opening of several clubs, and the trauma was an especial favorite with the young set. meditating became the thing to do, and the beatles' own guru made a widely publicized tour of the u.s. to demonstrate his method of seeking inner peace.

sidney poitier, star of such movies as to sir with love and in the heat of night, became a top movie personality and the first negro actor to make it into the top ten. great "specials" of all types continued to be brought into the average living room via television.

in sports, the philadelphia 76ers became the world champion basketball team. the innovation of professional soccer and ice hockey teams in the city caused great enthusiasm. a new multi-purpose indoor sports facility, the spectrum, put new life into philadelphia's sports program. all in all, our senior year was one to remember.

increased enrollment marks school year increased enrollment of both staff and student body added to an already overcrowded situation at bartram high this year. pupil population grew to close to four thousand, and over fifty new teachers were added to the staff. the school continued to operate on a four shift system, and every available space was pressed into use.

despite such conditions, however, the quality of instruction remained high. innovations were incorporated into almost every department. department heads held frequent meetings with principal hincken and vice-principals krimins, tomasco, and warner.

in the english department, purchase of equipment and books added to the course of study. team teaching, in which the school's closed-circuit television system was utilized, became part of the program. over four hundred students participated in the motivation program. this program aimed at improving reading comprehension and literature appreciation. it also made tickets available so that students could attend cultural events at reduced prices.

mr. mervin krimins, vice-principal despite the ever-increasing clerical work necessary to a large school, the office staff provided cheerful and efficient service to the administration, the faculty, and the students.

school leaders plan varied programs concentrating on readying students for future commercial positions, the commerce department offered a school work program, cooperative office education, distributive education, and a business work shop. since bartram is the city's magnet school for commercial subjects, special courses in elementary accounting, data processing, and key punch operation were made available to the students.

there was a revision in science teaching as a result of the installation of new equipment. all science rooms were equipped with television sets, and the closed-circuit television system became a major part of the biology course. the industrial and fine arts department offered trade preparatory courses in automoble repair, electricity, machine, and woodworking. a recently begun upholstering course was popular, and students' work was sold to well-satisfied customers.

in the foreign language department, the audio-lingual, multi-sensory course in now mandatory in early language study. it is used to eliminate english translation and english word association. a two period course in italian, utilizing this method, is planned.

numerous sports activities are offered by the physical education department in addition to the regular gym classes. for students unable to meet the rigors of these regular classes, too, remedial and medical gym programs are available. an increased counseling staff, though still overburdened because of the number of pupils in the school, offers aid of various types. the schoolwide testing program identifies pupil weaknesses and strengths, and the seven counselors try to select suitable colleges for those students planning on further education and to suggest job opportunities for those students seeking employment.

the ladies of bartram's home and school association, in their never ending drive to promote interest in our school and its students, give untiringly of themselves throughout the school year. possibly their greatest contribution is in creating a forum through which parents, teachers, and the community can discuss and solve problems facing school and community.

in helping to create a more congenial atmosphere in our school, the nonteaching assistants are faced with a very demanding, but rewarding task.

bartram's cafeteria staff works to provide varied, well-balanced meals for students and teachers in a pleasant atmosphere. the lunchroom staff must be credited for help in maintaining the health of bartram students.

mr. william mcfarland works with the locker aides in the issuing of lockers to new students and in general seeing to the smooth operation of a complex system. regulation of stock can prove to be a problem in a school of bartram's size. the situation is met, however, with the coordinating system organized by the stock clerks.

student government stresses leadership the student association, which as its name suggests is a student representative body, works under the capable sponsorship of mrs. marie wheaton to give students a greater voice in the workings of the school system. the primary objective of the association is to aid in the preparation of students for a more complete participation in our national democracy and to promote student welfare through student government.

the organization consists of three branches: the executive board, the student council, and the advisory representatives. the executive board and advisory representatives meet to discuss current problems.

support for the student government is fostered by the point system. the system awards service points to students who participate in extracurricular activities and to advisories for attendance, punctuality, and contributions. top advisory groups receive invitations to special assembly programs.

the student association under the leadership of mrs. wheaton and pres. colmon holmes has striven to establish a better understanding between faculty and students.

honor society holds installation ceremony

the national honor society seeks not only to recognize exceptional scholarship but to promote its high purposes throughout the schools. Students elected to the national honor society have met the rigid requirements of academic excellence, active participation in extra-curricular activities, and faculty approval.

each year john bartram high school inducts its chapter members into the national honor society in an installation ceremony. this year's induction was held on november 3rd. the sponsor of the bartram chapter, mr. vincent tumolo, and officers bruce forsythe (president), robert richardson (vice-president), mimi naismith (secretary), colmon holmes (treasurer), and george barnes (sergeant-at-arms) work together to promote interest in the society through the tutoring program.

appreciation grows by music experience

a very large working body, the combined band and orchestra consists of 115 members, 24 of whom are seniors. due to the problems imposed by the various rosters of the members of the band and orchestra, mr. michael buglio, their instructor, never knows how the full band will sound in unison, until the eve of a concert; however, despite this difficulty, his proteges were invited to perform at various junior high schools in the christmas day parade, and in the annual senior high school band, orchestra and choir festival.

under the direction of mr. john henzel, the choir combines with the orchestra to form a harmonious union. the annual christmas and spring concerts are highlights of choir activities and are always enjoyed by students, parents, and the community.

what kind of encouragement would bartram's athletes receive without the enthusiasm generated by the spirited cheers and chants of the cheerleaders and marching groups? following the various teams from victory to victory, the girls use their untiring energy to evoke from the onlookers a sense of unity with the team.

co-captains julia evans and betsy daley are two of the seniors who comprise the squad. other seniors are marlene pitts, linda barrow, and leslie berman. thanks to the superb training which the girls received under the guidance of mr. martin meltz, bartram once again has an excellent group.

bartram clubs offer varied programs

a wide variety of clubs cater to the interests of the students of bartram high. for those interested in a career in the teaching profession, the future teachers of america club, sponsored by mrs. earlene satterfield, offers an interesting program of activities. members discuss current trends in education and are sometimes permitted to gain some practical classroom experience. guest speakers are invited to lecture to club members.

meeting every monday afternoon at 2:30, the members of the red cross club try to help as many people as possible with their limited means by making layettes for hospitals, assisting at the blood banks, and supplying food and other commodities for needy families. under the guidance of their sponsor, mrs. carolyn hill, and their president, carla craig, the six members of the club work as a well organized group to help promote local good will.

throughout the year, the forty members of the world affairs club go on trips and receive many interesting guest speakers from different countries. mr. stanley wartman, their sponsor, arranged for the club members to hear speakers from egypt, nigeria, and israel. the purpose of these activities is to help the students become more aware of the world around them.

the fellowship club, sponsored by mrs. ellen o'flaherty and mr. richard brown, works to create a greater sense of cooperation and companionship among students. discussion of controversial affairs, both past and current, is the agenda of the history club, directed by mr. donald kerr. mr. jules hochberg, sponsor of the future nurses of america club, aids students by providing them with some insight into the nursing career. the leaders club, led by mrs. dorothy wyld, provides an opportunity for girls to supplement their athletic activities. club members serve as assistants during regular gym classes. miss caroline putney's dance club has given many fine performances during special assembly programs.

aides continue to be important to the operation of a well-organized high school. the homeroom secretaries, sponsored by mrs. suzanne sankowsky, perform invaluable services by aiding busy advisors. checking attendance and reading the daily bulletin are among their duties. the office-secretaries of room 128 assist in the heaps of clerical and paper work which would otherwise hinder its effective operation.

in the infirmary, mrs. eva federman and miss belle freedman are largely dependent on their aides as messengers and assistants. the projectionists show films at assembly programs and in classrooms to supplement regular classwork. the vice-principals depend upon their aides to assist with routine clerical work. stock room aides perform the duties of delivering supplies and supplying locks and lockers.

students aid school in many ways

language lab aides, under the supervision of mr. harry saltzman, volunteer their services during study and lunch periods. they are trained to operate all of the lab equipment and are quite essential to the efficient operation of the language lab. they are always on hand to assist in any way possible.

for the purpose of assisting miss uses in the smooth operation of the school library, the library aides are organized. the aides have been thoroughly trained in the fundamentals of the library system. they offer assistance not only to miss uses, but to fellow students who are not familiar with the complexities of the library system.

aides are also essential to mr. fratkin in the efficient running of financial matters.

paying tribute to negro participation in american history, the combined talents of mrs. caroline putney's dance club, mrs. marleigh baratz' vocal ensemble, and miss carolyn pritchett's eighth period english class were used to illustrate the past and present conditions of the negro in america.

with the help of mr. carl matthews of the biology department, the junior assembly was treated to a forty-five minute program consisting of narrations of the negro's african heritage, his contributions to american society, and his present role in this society. interspersed between these narrations were african and negro songs sung by the vocal ensemble. also featured in the performance was an african dance and a protest dance done by the members of the dance club.

practicing untiringly before and after school hours to make this program a success, the eighty members of the vocal ensemble, the twenty members of the dance club, and the seven narrators that participated in the program felt themselves well rewarded. their performance acquainted their audience with negro culture, and was entertaining as well.

each year the trailmarker staff carefully combines efforts to produce the trailmarker. the publication of the yearbook is by no means a simple task; it involves many hours of effort to compile the record of an entire year. the trailmarker staff, under the adept guidance of miss mary pollitt, who provides much needed assistance and directs the yearbook publication, works to produce a successful finished product.

heading the staff are the editors-in-chief, robert richardson and jacqueline smith. the problems of designing and redesigning, planning and replanning, are tackled by the layout editor linda lockhart. writing and rewriting is done by copy editor patricia jarrett and sports editors bruce forsythe and amy mack. much credit must be given to such members as michael miller and rhoda rosenberg, who aided in photography and management.

each year the graduating class highlights its activities with its class trip. the class of 1968 is no exception with its memorable trip to our nation's capital on december 3, 1967. beginning at 7:00 a.m. the three-hour train ride to washington provided students with time for socializing. with the arrival at union station, the cultural portion of the trip commenced. at the station the seniors boarded their assigned buses to begin their tour of the federal triangle. the first stop was the white house, with a tour of the state dining room, and the green room. from the white house the sight-seeing tour continued up the governmental thoroughfare to pennsylvania avenue where many federal buildings are located.

successful junior dinner dance held at country club

a real trendsetter, the class of 1968 will be remembered as first not only in academic and athletic achievements, but also in successful social activities. on may 26, 1967, the class attended john bartram high's first junior dinner dance. it was held at the beautiful greenbrier country club in wynnefield, pennsylvania, and over four hundred juniors in semi-formal attire were present. mr. harold briskin, sponsor of the class, and other faculty members were also in attendance.

the elegantly decorated club, with its softly lighted chandeliers and paneled mirrors, was a perfect setting for the fashionably dressed students to dine and dance. dinner was served at 7:30, but a soft drink bar provided refreshments through the rest of the evening.

following dinner, the juniors were entertained by the singing of beverly brown, then a senior. she was accompanied by the blue notes, a local rock and roll group, who also provided music for the dance. all too soon the clock tolled twelve and the affair came to an end, remaining only a cherished memory for those who attended.

bartram co-champion in public league

bartram's 1967 football team was a co-champion of the public league. though not even mentioned in the pre-season prognosis, the braves had the finest season in bartram history. they did all this despite a mid-season coaching change.

the team started with a 34-0 whitewash of bok, followed by 12-6 and 22-0 victories over dobbins and overbrook. it was after the overbrook game that coach charles tomasco was appointed vice-principal of bartram, and assistant coach frank conway was appointed to replace him. this event coincided with a major test in the braves' season, the game with the undefeated inventors of edison. fortunately, mr. tomasco and mr. conway had worked together closely, and therefore the transfer proceeded smoothly.

the braves met their first real test with a hard fight and closely contested victory over edison. despite a loss to washington the following week, bartram was gaining a reputation as a team that would hit, hit, and hit again.

the teams line up for play with bartram on offense. as the ball is snapped, players hold to meet on rushing defenders.

substitutes anxiously await the call, watching closely the play that could decide the game.

thanksgiving game drowned by rain on thanksgiving day the braves played their traditional game with west catholic. the game, pitting a public league co-champion against the southern division champion in the catholic league was bogged down by rain which turned the playing field into one big puddle. neither of the two teams was able to launch a major offensive, due to the mud and to the tenacious defense of both teams. the game's most exciting play was a ninety yard interception by marv frazier which was nullified by a clipping penalty. the final score was 12-8, with bartram on the losing end.

there was a playoff game to decide which of the three teams tied for first place would represent the public league in the championship game. two teams would play one half, with the victor playing the remaining team for the title. bartram drew central as its first half opponent. after falling behind by thirteen points, the braves scored on a kick-off return by marv frazier. our team, which had often come from behind to win, seemed to be doing it again. a long pass to sherman holloway put them near the goal, but time ran out, since the game was only half the usual length of a game. nevertheless, nothing can alter the fact that the bartram team of 1967 was a co-champion of the public league.

once again bartram had a soccer team to be proud of. coached by mr. edward tatoian, the team was able to carve out a record of four victories, four defeats, and one tie. this does not include an impressive 2-1 victory over bartram's traditional rivals, the burrs of west catholic.

the team was captained by edward barnes and keith gamley, two fine and dedicated players. caveral price, the leading scorer and a first team selection for all public; keith gamley, a second team selection; caza bazar; and bruce hitchens led the attack for the braves. the back positions were manned by paul gonnsen, richard adelman, wayne medchum, harold booker, and edward barnes. the goalie, the player who tries to prevent the ball from entering the net by blocking it with his body, was clarence smith. he received all public honorable mention for doing a commendable job.

speed and stamina mark road to victory over the last four years the cross-country team has compiled a record of 81 wins and 5 losses. our 1968 team has helped to build this record, placing fourth in overall competition in the public league.

the cross-country meets were held once a week and were quadrangular-that is, with four teams running in each. sixty to one-hundred boys ran for each team, and the first eight boys who finished the course were numbered to their finish place for their respective teams. the team that scored the lowest total was the winner.

the coach of the team was mr. john gallante. among the senior members of this year's team were ed easton, lonnie davis, and anthony mckinley. the number one runner of this year was james graham, a junior who will be returning next year. an outstanding freshman who ran for the junior varsity due to his grade level was joseph o'rourke.

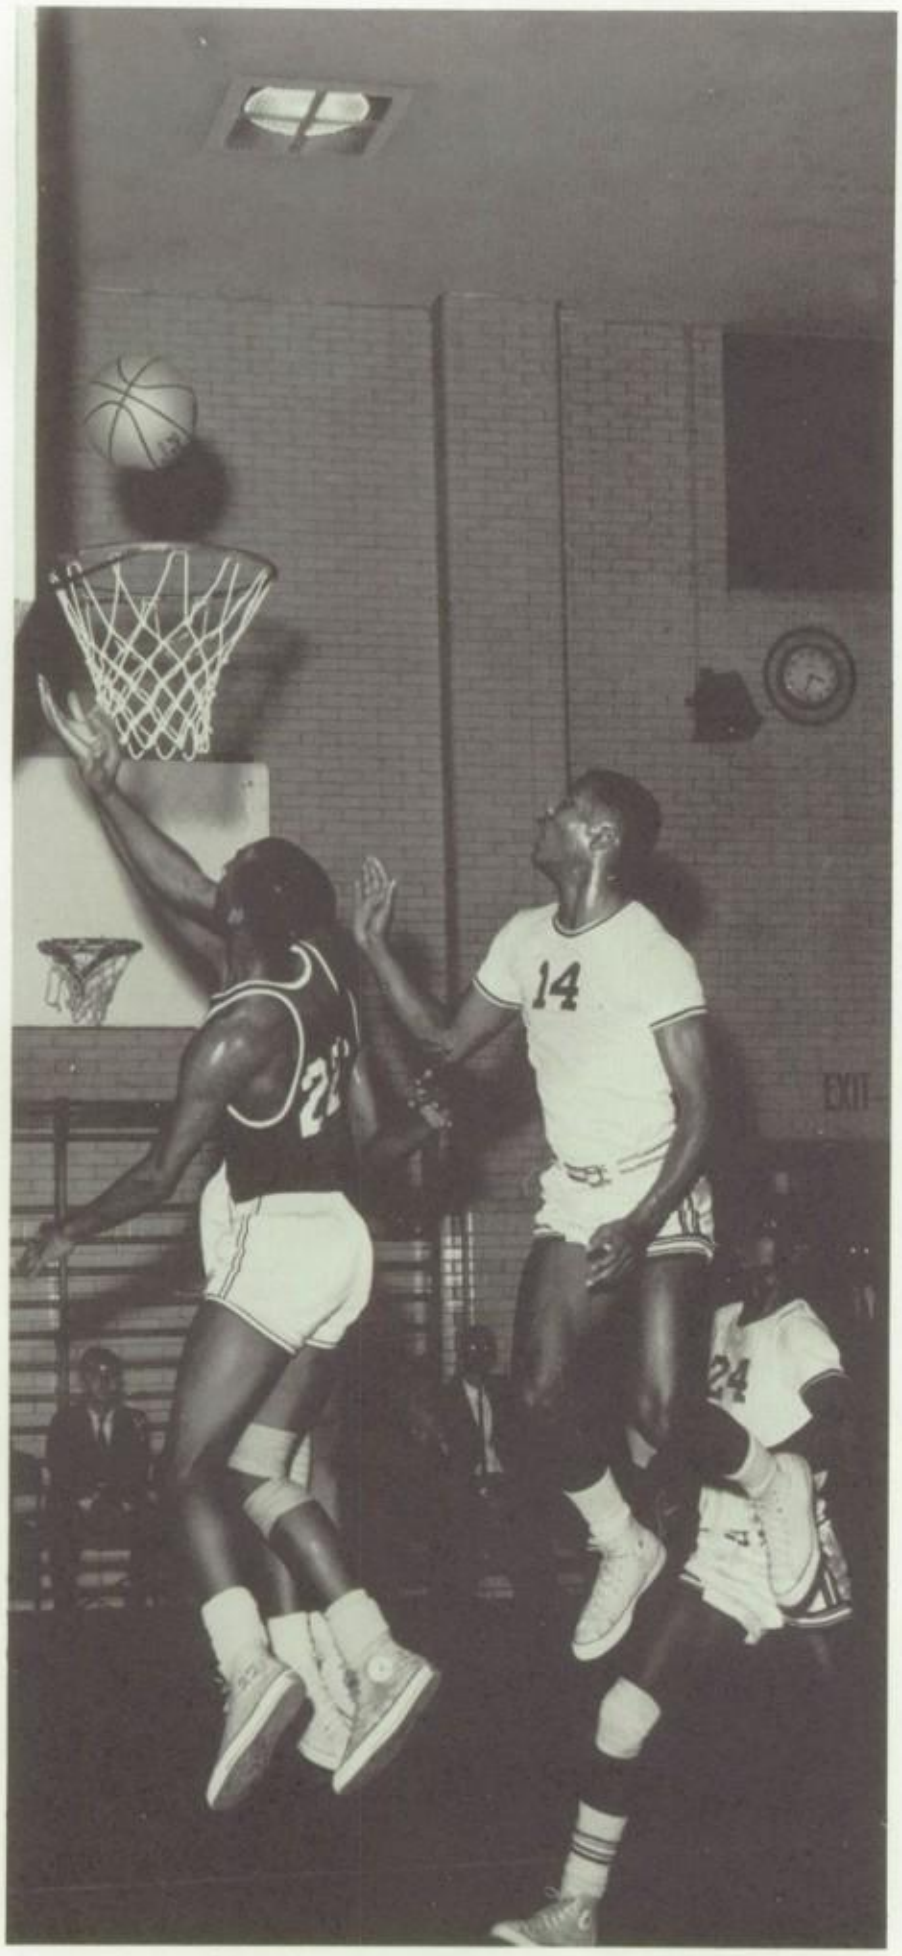
basketball team breaks state record



the bartram basketball team of 1967-68 ended its season with a record of nine wins and five losses, placing sixth in overall competition in the public league. the team was coached by mr. jack farrell. after a rough pre-season schedule, the braves started out slowly, but they picked up momentum as the season went along. the braves' season ended in a blaze of glory with a game in which they set a state record. they scored 158 points against gratz high school.

the team had a better than average season, doing better than expected as shown in the pre-season predictions. it was a small team when it came to height, but a team that always hustled and put forth its best effort. this was a team of which we all can be proud.

mike moore (14) and ernie strange (24) arrived too late to defend against this germantown layup.

bartram hoopsters have good season

the team had a number of outstanding players this year. the ball handling was done mostly by ernie strange, the braves' sure-handed quick guard. a majority of the points were scored by mike moore, our other guard, who ended up third in the public league scoring race. another of the high scorers for the braves was marv frazier, who also finished among the top scorers in the league. elliot brown, the other forward on the team, did a good deal of rebounding in many of the games.

the center position was held by zeb thomas who, despite his lack of height among the league's other big men, could hold his own under the boards and could always be counted on for a strong effort. he was backed up by leroy wright, the club's sixth man when it came to substitutions. he also started a few games at the center position. all of these boys were seniors.

team scores high in fitness and spirit

the bartram gymnastics team of 1968 was a young and inexperienced team. the team was coached by mr. john gallante, who has had charge of the team for nine years. this year's team had only one senior member, donald harris, so many of this year's team will be returning next year.

the events of a gym meet are held on the parallel bar, the rings, the side horse, the mats (tumbling), and the high bar. each participant in every event is scored on a basis of points, ten for a perfect score. the total number of points is added up at the end of a meet to determine the winner — the team with the greatest number of points.

among the other varsity players on the 1968 team were warren marshall, dave peterson, micky houston, and lynwood parker, who are all juniors. this year's team did a commendable job and can be expected to do much better next year.

clean strokes lead to victory despite the fact that our girl's swimming team did not win any of the meets scheduled, under the coaching of mrs. dorothy wyld, the senior members of the team, linda lockhart, regina vaughn, amy mack, and valada jones, the senior captain and best swimmer, brought the team near victory in two of three matches.

the bartram boy's swimming team of 1968, under the direction of mr. george tomosky, posted a record of two wins and five losses. it was a young team, with only one senior, ronald harding, and two juniors, david davis and mike lomax.

girls aim high to win games

this year's volleyball season extended from september 1967 to november of the same year. combining the coaching abilities of mrs. anne haines and the playing abilities of the team's best players (eleanor brown, gloria brookins, lynn harper, rolondo moseby and crystal tiggle) the girl's volleyball team achieved no resounding victories and had an uneventful season.

practicing several hours after school in the girl's gym on monday, tuesday, and wednesday, the girls on the basketball team developed and improved their playing abilities.

victories mark track season

the 1967 bartram track team will go down in the records as being one of the best ever. with the help of their coach, mr. john gallante, the boys were able to set several records at their meets, but most important of all they won the penn relays and wound up their season with the title of city champs. zeb thomas was fourth in the city for high hurdles. greg bassett came in second in the 100 yard dash and in the 220 yard dash. cornelius singleton and john bell made fifth place in shotput competition. other members of the team included marvin easton, jimmy graham, emerson willis, and luther fauntleroy.

the boy's tennis team, under the leadership of coach edward tatoian posted a record of five wins with six losses in 1967. the boys won twenty-seven out of a possible fifty-five matches, and took third place in overall competition in the southern division of the public league.

this year, all but one of last year's varsity players will be returning, the only loss to the team coming from the graduation of joe davis, the number one man of 1967. among the returning seniors will be bruce hitchens, thomas scotton, and frank wenograd. some of the returning juniors will be mike willis, harold booker, and eugene hairston.

under the guidance of their coach, miss agnes stegmuller, and their captain, mary robinson, the girls' tennis team emerged victorious from five of the eight games which it played last season. by practicing daily at the finnegan playground, the girls developed such degrees of skill that most of their victories came easy to them.

young team faces rough 1967 season it was a trying season for mr. john klingman's varsity team. out of the twelve games played, bartram won two: bok falling victim to the braves twice with scores of 2-0 and 4-2. the senior members of the team included marvin frazier playing shortstop. third baseman was sherman holloway; catcher, phil ungerer; and gary lott pitched and played third base. bruce decker, pitcher and second baseman, made the all-public second team. since many of these young players were out for their first time and would be coming back next season, coach john klingman predicted more favorable results for this spring. preseason games played so far seem to support this prediction.

bowling teams score strikes and spares practicing diligently monday through friday from 3:00 to 5:30 at fleetwood bowling alleys, the girls' bowling team has achieved an excellent record. ignoring the odds, the team emerged from their intramural bowling meets almost undefeated, having lost only one of the eight games they were scheduled to play. this well earned rating was due mainly to the bowling abilities of lynne gutineze, jane gryzsnikowski, and phil campbell, who owe much of their skill to the vigorous training they underwent under the guidance of miss agnes stegmuller, their sponsor.

bartram was represented by a five man team in public league varsity bowling this year. the team was led by senior ted barnes.

advisors and sponsors guide senior activities

the past year has been one crammed with many activities, much excitement, fun, tension, and in some instances confusion and disappointment, but it has been a year that we will long remember. we have formed friendships whose bonds will not be broken easily. we have had experiences that will never be forgotten, but most of all we have matured into young men and women who are about to embark on a new road.

i should like to extend my sincerest wishes for a healthy, happy and successful future to all members of the class of june 1968. and though you pass through the doors of bartram, never forget her, for she will never forget you.
